Program Description: The session will introduce participants to the work of VA's Community Based Interventions for Suicide Prevention (CBI-SP) model of community engagement focused on specific efforts for addressing lethal means safety in the Veteran community as one component of the comprehensive approach to suicide prevention that is outlined in the VA's National Strategy to End Veteran Suicide.

Efforts to increase implementation of lethal means safety education and training is underway as a priority area of focus taken on by states that participate in the VA/SAMHSA Governor's Challenge (GC) program.

The live, virtual training for healthcare teams will allow panelists from two GC member states, Arizona and Virginia to share how they have worked to engage community stakeholders in understanding and addressing the impact of lethal means safety in suicide prevention work with their military and veteran populations.
